Saint Rosmini?????????

Submitted by seven up on October 31, 2007 - 8:41pm. --- Spirituality & Culture

I need a quick course on the philosophy and theology of Rosmini, the man who is to be beatified next week. He was a friend of popes and yet his writings were on the forbidden books list. He was hated by some in the church and yet tried to lead the church in needed new directions. He was in favor of separation of church and state before anyone else in Rome was. His literary output rivals any of the doctors of the church. Is his effect only now being realized?

From what I read so far, this

From what I read so far, this man's has the most interesting story.

There seemed to be politics involved -He wanted the unification of Italy and as a result of that the Austrians were accused of poisoning him.

Theology- He believed in immediate 'beatific vision for infants who die unbaptised'

Charity -He sent raised more money in Italy for Ireland during the famine than the British government sent.

He believed that the primary purpose of marriage was not the procreation of children but the love between the husband and wife.

He considered much of the theology of the church to be tinged with 'brainwashing'

I'm looking for a real objective book on Him.[blessed Rosmini]
